

The Ball Doesn't Matter Anymore!

Performance, performance and more performance! The new DeMarini Stadium is ready to take on all comers with a design that is so revolutionary that it will certainly catapult the company with an insane dedication to everything to the top of the slowpitch world. "We really have something special with this one", said Jerry Garnett, National Slowpitch Marketing Manager for DeMarini. "We've worked hard for the last 2 years to perfect a design and manufacturing process that will allow for players to really see a measurable performance difference when using low compression balls. The key is in the unique design lay-up and processing of the materials. We are utilizing an assortment of high and low composite angles as well as a proprietary super toughened resin system on this model. Our main goal was to overcome the performance problems that players have when they run into soft compression balls. What came out of all of our effort was not only a bat that excelled with a wide range of ball compression, but a design that is extremely durable while performing at a level that is at the top of its class," Garnett explained.

The Stadium pairs a 12" N-Spec composite barrel with a stiff SC4 aluminum handle to create a slightly end-loaded bat. This model is available in 26, 27, 28 & 30 weights and is BPF 1.20 approved for USSSA, NSA and ISA play.

Although DeMarini will not offer their new Stadium flagship model to the public until early September, this bat can already be found in the hands of their two Long Haul Bombers Power Tour bash brothers, Chris Larsen and Geno Buck. Chris and Geno are currently leading the Power Tour as a team and in the individual category using the Stadium model and are well positioned to make the September 14th finals in New York City.

"It feels great to be making slowpitch bats that are generating so much interest again. We have extremely high hope for the Stadium model and early feedback from players that have used it is that we better be prepared to make a lot of bats because this one is going to be very popular," added Garnett. We agree that the crew up at DeMarini is at the top of their slowpitch game and are well positioned to wrap up a year that had plenty of success stories with the best bat that has come out of their shop in years. Keep your eye on this group; they're going to be fun to watch!
